COUNTER-TRAFFICKING DIRECTORY

FOR EMBASSIES & CONSULATES STAFF

International Organization for Migration (IOM)

The UN Migration Agency

WHAT IS INCLUDED IN THE COUNTER-TRAFFICKING DIRECTORY ?

This directory gathers key facts and figures about human trafficking in different countries, which you can check before taking up your duties in the country you have newly been appointed to. It also contains useful contacts to refer the victim or potential victim you might identify according to his/her profile: s/he can be in need of immediate protection, need further counselling, wish to stay in the country of destination, or ask to return back to his/her home country. According to the option s/he chooses, s/he might be entitled to different assistance schemes.

WHO SHOULD USE THE COUNTER-TRAFFICKING DIRECTORY ?

This tool has been designed to help embassies and consulates staff in referring victims and potential victims of trafficking, and can be provided as a handy tool after the staff has been trained on how to identify a victim of trafficking. However, it can also be used by a large range of practitioners working with victims of trafficking, as it aims to facilitate transnational referrals.

HOW TO USE THE COUNTER-TRAFFICKING DIRECTORY ?

The factsheets have been classified by continent. Each factsheet is one-page sized in order to provide selected information. You should contact national stakeholders in charge of counter-trafficking if you need more specific/updated information. You can click on the country you want to learn about on the “index” page to access the country’s page directly.

Guinea

MAIN TRENDS AND FIGURES

- Between 45 and 65 victims of trafficking identified in 2017 according to National Counter-trafficking Committee. IOM assisted 18 victims of trafficking in the first half of 2018.
- Main types of exploitation: sexual exploitation, forced labour and forced begging (children)
- Guinea is a source, transit, and — to a lesser extent — destination country for men, women, and children. Women and children are the most vulnerable to trafficking. Traffickers subject men, women, and children to forced labour in agriculture and exploit boys in begging, street vending and shoe shining, forced labor in gold and diamond mines, and in herding, fishing, and agriculture, including farming and on coffee, cashew, and cocoa plantations. Guinean women and girls are victims of domestic servitude and sex trafficking in West Africa, Europe, and the Middle East, as well as the United States

ASSISTANCE AVAILABLE AND MAIN STAKEHOLDERS INVOLVED

- Victims of trafficking are entitled to receive shelter, food, medical assistance, psychological and legal support.
- There are no government shelters for victims of trafficking, so the government continued to rely on NGOs and foreign donors to finance and provide the majority of victim care.

Mauritania

MAIN TRENDS AND FIGURES

- ◉ In 2017 IOM assisted 136 victims of trafficking exploited in domestic work
- ◉ Mauritania is a source, transit, and destination country for men, women, and children subjected to forced labor and sex trafficking. Adults and children from traditional slave castes in the Black Moor and Afro-Mauritanian communities are subjected to hereditary slavery practices rooted in ancestral master-slave relationships, where they are often forced to work without pay as cattle herders and domestic servants.
- ◉ West African women and girls, especially Senegalese and Ivoirians, are vulnerable to domestic servitude and sex trafficking in Mauritania. Mauritanian women and West and Central African migrants transiting Mauritania en route to Europe are forced into prostitution. Sub-Saharan African migrants transit Mauritania en route to Morocco and Europe are exploited in forced labor and sex trafficking. Mauritanian women and girls are fraudulently recruited by foreign agencies and Mauritanian middlemen for nursing and teaching jobs abroad and exploited in domestic servitude and sex trafficking in the Gulf, including Saudi Arabia. Men from Middle Eastern and North African countries use legally contracted temporary marriages to sexually exploit Mauritanian girls and young women. Mauritanian women and girls from poor families enter into these forced marriages. In 2016, an international organization identified and removed from a refugee camp in southeastern Mauritania 16 Malian child soldiers aged 15-17 associated with Malian rebel groups.

ASSISTANCE AVAILABLE AND MAIN STAKEHOLDERS INVOLVED
